Hames Sharley is delighted to announce the appointment of Cameron Martin as a Principal in our Sydney Studio. With more than 25 years' international experience spanning health, education, commercial, industrial, community and retail sectors, Cameron brings a wealth of design, delivery and business development expertise to the practice.

Cameron is a highly respected leader within the architectural and construction industries, having directed and delivered complex projects for major clients including hospitals, schools, cultural institutions and community infrastructure. His career highlights include Director positions at Hickton Madeley Architects in UK and Morris Bray Architects, Martin & Ollmann Architects, and more recently DesignInc Sydney in Australia, where he has consistently demonstrated his ability to combine design rigour with commercial acumen.

Cameron is recognised not only for his technical expertise and industry knowledge, but also for his commitment to clients and colleagues alike. His leadership style is hands-on, collaborative, and grounded in a belief that successful outcomes stem from both the process and the product.

"I am committed to each client's success through the successful management of the design and delivery process. I enjoy leading a team, large or small, in collaborating with stakeholders and problem solving to ensure that the best outcome is achieved," he said.

"I am very excited to be joining such an experienced and exciting practice as Hames Sharley and contributing to their ongoing success."

Outside of his professional life, Cameron is a passionate golfer and proud father of three adult children, each pursuing creative and ambitious careers of their own. His network of relationships across developers, contractors, government agencies, and project managers is a testament to his long-standing commitment to the industry and his approachable, people-first nature.

Cameron's appointment strengthens Hames Sharley's senior leadership team and further enhances the practice's capacity to deliver exceptional outcomes across health, education, community and commercial sectors.
